

Corona virus entry pass

Design District follows the measures taken by the government and as it looks now, we will have to ask all visitors and participants to show a corona virus entry pass during Design District on 3-4-5 November for entering the Van Nelle Factory.

To gain access to Design District, you need a valid corona virus entry pass and a valid identity card. As corona entry pass we use the EU Digital Covid Certificate (DCC). This digital certificate is received when you have a valid negative Covid test (no more than 24 hours old), have been fully vaccinated or have recovered from Covid-19.

How to obtain this certificate varies by country. For example, it can be obtained from the testing centers, the health authorities, or through an e-health portal. The national health authorities of your country provide the information on how to get the certificate.

The digital version can be displayed via an app or stored on a smartphone or tablet. In the Netherlands, for example, the CoronaCheck app is used. A paper version can also be printed. Both versions contain a QR code with essential information and a digital signature that guarantees the authenticity of the certificate. You can read more about this on the website of the European Commission.

The Corona virus entry pass is checked when entering the hall. Please have your pass code ready on arrival for a smooth flow at the entrance. If you leave the hall in the meantime, you must have your pass checked again upon entering. The pass must be shown together with a valid ID.

If you do not have a recovery or vaccination certificate, you can be tested to get a Corona virus entry pass. This "Test for Entry" initiative tests event visitors (for the time being free of charge) on Covid-19. You can make an appointment via <https://www.testenvoortogang.org/> 2 weeks prior.

There is currently a test location in the parking lot of the Van Nelle Factory. If it is not busy, a result will come in within fifteen minutes, but we have no guarantees on that. It is not known whether the test location will still be at the Van Nelle during Design District on November 3-4-5. You can also have a test taken at providers such as www.spoedtest.nl. These tests are not free, but they do guarantee a result within 30 minutes.

Once inside the exhibition floor, there are no more restrictions. Keeping 1,5 meters away is no longer mandatory, but it is possible. A face mask is also not mandatory, of course you are allowed to wear one. Disinfection gel is available at the entrance, catering points and toilets, and the Van Nelle Factory has good ventilation system.
